Safety Rules:

- Keep all firearms UNLOADED and in a case or box when not on the firing line.
- The muzzle of a firearm is always to be pointed down range. Never turn around with a firearm.
- Keep your finger off the trigger and outside of the trigger guard until you are on target and ready to fire.
- When you pick up a firearm, open the action and make sure that the firearm is unloaded.
- Know how your gun works. If you don't know how a particular gun works, read the manual, ask the person you got it from, write the manufacturer for a manual or seek the advice of an expert.
- Never rely on the safety on a firearm.
- If you find it necessary to bench and inspect your firearm when shooting; remove the magazine and open the slide and remove any cartridge or swing out and empty the cylinder.
- Never lower the hammer on a live cartridge, do not rely on decocking mechanisms. Remove all ammunition from the firearm before decocking or lowering the hammer.
- If you experience a mechanical firearm malfunction (stove pipe, failure to feed, double feed, out of battery, failure to feed or failure to eject) or other problem with a semi-automatic pistol, remove the magazine and clear the action before inspecting the firearm.
- If a loaded rimfire cartridge is stuck in the chamber, never attempt to pry it out. Remove the magazine, then push the cartridge out with a rod or dowel inserted from the muzzle.
- Misfire: If firearm fails to discharge or fire properly, keep the muzzle pointed downrange and keep your supporting hand away from the action. Wait 30 seconds before removing the magazine and attempting to clear the chamber. Ammunition has been known to hang fire (delayed fire).
- Squib rounds: A squib round is a firearm malfunction in which a fired projectile does not have enough force to exit the barrel and becomes stuck in the barrel. If this happens, the report may be quieter than usual and the recoil may feel unusual. This type of malfunction can be extremely dangerous, as failing to notice that the projectile has become stuck in the barrel may result in another round being fired directly into the obstructed barrel, resulting in a catastrophic failure of the weapon's structural integrity. Never fire a second round. You should immediately unload the gun and inspect the barrel and firing chamber for a stuck bullet. Use a wooden dowel to remove the bullet. You may want to have a gunsmith examine the gun before you begin firing again.
- Never handle anyone's firearm without their permission.
- When bench shooting or sighting in a pistol, always rest the heel of the shooting hand and the gun butt in your supporting hand. Never wrap your supporting hand around the shooting hand. This can cause a serious injury to the supporting hand.
- Eye and ear protection are required on the range at all times. NO EXCEPTIONS. All persons in the ready room must wear eye protection, whether you are shooting or not. Always wear hearing protection when on the firing line or in the ready room. Failure to protect your ears will result in impaired hearing.
- Shooting while under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol is prohibited. Drugs and/or alcohol are prohibited on the premises.
